(54) Title: LOUDSPEAKER

(57) Abstract

A portable loudspeaker (10) resembling a double CD case, comprises left- and right-hand lids (12, 14) pivotally coupled about parallel axes AA and BB to side walling (16). The side walling (16) forms an open box-like enclosure, with the left- and right-hand lids (12, 14) acting as the top and bottom surfaces to complete the enclosure when covering the opening at either end of the side walling (16). Each lid comprises a sound generating unit in the form of a distributed mode acoustic radiator (20). By adopting the shape of a double CD-case, the loudspeaker is more readily accepted as a portable loudspeaker by users of personal CD players. Similar considerations apply to portable loudspeakers shaped like single CD cases, audio-tape cassette cases and mini-disc cases.

Re Item IV

Lack of unity of invention

- 1).The application lacks unity as the claims pertain to two separate inventions.
 - 2).The separate claim groups are:
 - a).Claims 1 - 12 : a portable loudspeaker comprising a sound generating unit in a housing the housing having an outer periphery in the shape of a storage device for a CD box or a tape cassette box or a mini disc box.
 - b).Claims 13 to 18 : a portable loud speaker comprising a sound generating unit mounted in or on a lid of a box enclosure of a housing , which lid can move to cover or uncover the enclosure opening and means coupled to the sound generating unit to receive signals from a personal player.
 - c).Claims 19 to 25 : a loudspeaker comprising an acoustic radiator and a transducer wherein the acoustic radiator comprises first and second regions with different stiffness.
 - d).Claims 26 and 27 : Combine the two inventions of 1 to 12 or 13 to 18 with the invention of claims 19 to 25.
 - 3a). Rule 13 (PCT) requires that the application relate to one invention only or to a group of inventions so linked as to form a single general inventive concept.
 - bi).The intended inventive concept of independent claim 1 appears to involve the combination of a portable loudspeaker with a housing having an outer periphery in the shape of a storage device.
 - ii).The concept of claim 13 appears to be that the portable loud speaker housing comprises an enclosure , which enclosure is not necessarily comparable with the storage device shaped outer periphery of claim 1. This thus forms a second concept.
 - c).The intended inventive concept of independent claim 19 pertains to a loud speaker and features of its acoustic radiator.
- This therefore has no common features and certainly no common inventive link with claims 1 to 18 such that there is a lack of unity.

Re Item V

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1). Claims 1 to 18

a). Claim 1 pertains to a portable loud speaker comprising a sound generating unit in a housing having an outer shape of a storage device selected from the group consisting of CD box, tape cassette box and minidisc box.

b). The prior art shows

i). in D1 : WO97 09856 a portable loud speaker arrangement which also includes a housing in the form of a CD player comprising a box type part and lid. The loud speakers may be mounted in the lid of the box type part which contains the CD player device (see page 3 line 24 to page 4 line 4).

The difference between this and the portable loud speaker of claim 1 of the present application is that the CD player of D1 is intended to play the CD but not to store the CD.

ii). in D2 : EP-A- 0 412 462 a picture/sound device includes a flat screen which acts as a lid hinged thereto. The loud speaker may be arranged within the hinge arrangement. This too is a player (of video tapes and of CDS for example) and is not in the form of a storage device there for.

c). It would therefore appear that a loud speaker arranged within a housing a storage device as claimed in claim 1 of the present application is not apparent from the prior art of the Search Report and would thus fulfill the requirements of Articles 33(2) and (3) PCT.

d). The dependent claims 2 to 12 would also fulfill these requirements being dependent on claim 1.

2). Claims 13 to 18

a). There is a lack of clarity in claim 13 due to the reference "hereinbefore defined" (see Section VIII) Thus as far as the claim may be understood , it would appear to be anticipated by the document D1 : WO9709856 which shows a box enclosure having a lid in which a loudspeaker is located (see page 3 lines 24 to 26).

Claim 13 thus appears to lack novelty in the light of D1 as far as it may be understood in the light of the lack of clarity objection.

INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY
EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

International application No. PCT/GB99/04142

b). Concerning the dependent claims 14 to 18 :

- i). Claim 14 : The lid of the box in D1 is attached by a hinge .
- ii). Claim 15 : The outer periphery of the box of D1 has the appearance of a CD player and not of a storage device from the group cited in claim 15. Thus the inclusion of this feature in claim 13 would possibly produce a novel and inventive claim which is however basically a repetition of features from claim 1 which would make it superfluous.
- iii). Claims 16 to 18 being dependent on claim 15 would also meet the requirements of Articles 33(2) and (3) PCT.

3). Claims 19 to 25

a). Claim 19 pertains to a loudspeaker comprising an acoustic radiator and a transducer wherein the acoustic radiator comprises first and second regions with different stiffness. Attention is directed to D1 which shows a loud speaker including a radiator panel that may also include patches to damp excessive movement (see page 9 lines 2 to 12). These patches would appear to increase the stiffness of the panel in the area where it is applied, thus anticipating the features of claim 19 such that claim 19 would not appear to be novel contrary to the requirements of Article 33(2) PCT.

b). According to D1 the panel has a uniform stiffness (see description page 1 lines 20 to 28). The addition of the bitumen patches would give these individual areas a second stiffness factor.

Thus it would appear that the features of claims 20 and 21 are anticipated by the disclosure of D1 and are thus not novel (Article 33(2) PCT).

c). The radiator panel appears to have a uniform thickness according to the disclosure of D1 , neither are the specific frequencies given and thus the feature of claim 22 is not disclosed therein such that this feature in combination with claim 19 could produce a claim which fulfills the requirements of Articles 33(2) and (3) PCT.

d). Claims 23 to 25 appear to refer to specific choices of ranges which would fulfill the requirements of Articles 33(2) and (3) when dependent on claim 22 .

4). Claims 26 and 27

These claims pertain to the combination of claims 1 to 12 with claims 13 to 18. As claim 1 appears to fulfill the requirements of Articles 33(2) and (3) PCT the combination of other features therewith would also fulfill these requirements.

EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

International application No. PCT/GB99/04142

Re Item VII

Certain defects in the international application

- 1). The features of the claims are not provided with reference signs placed in parentheses (Rule 6.2(b) PCT).

Re Item VIII

Certain observations on the international application

- 1). Claim 13 refers to "a portable loudspeaker for use with a personal player as hereinbefore defined ..."

This statement is not clear as it does not specify to where the "hereinbefore" applies. If it relates to the previous claims then it should refer to the claim number. Otherwise it should not refer to any specific passage in the description but be clear in itself as to its meaning.
